Colorful Campaigning Ends in Election Of Senior Class Officers; Flynn Heads List of Recent Successful Candidates

Le Moyne Seniors chose their class officers Friday, Oct. 12, climaxing the most colorful and spirited election campaigns ever conducted at the college.

Elected were John J. Flynn, president; John Considine, vice-president; Lois Walsh, secretary, and Nicholas Capozza, treasurer.

Flynn and Capozza, running on the same ticket, received the strong support of the college's Industrial Relations section, consisting of a motorcade around the campus and a pre-election rally party at one of the city's better known restaurants.

The supporters of one party went so far as to have a record made at a local radio station, impressing on voters the necessity of electing its candidates. The record could be heard playing outside of the cafeteria on election day.

Another party offered two tickets to the Syracuse-Fordham game to the Senior who composed the best rhyme to be used by that party as a campaign slogan.

Flynn, an I.R. major, is a native of Manhattan and resides in Valley Stream, N. Y. A graduate of Xavier High School, Flynn is a member of the Le Moyne Student Council, Metropolitan Club, Industrial Relations Club, and a former member of the track team. The new Senior Class president served as an Airborne Rifleman in the Army for two years.

Considine was treasurer of the Rochester Club and a member of the Student Council. A graduate of Aquinas Institute of Rochester, John, in addition to being chosen to Alpha Sigma Nu, Le Moyne's chapter of the National Jesuit Honorary Society, was also elected president of the chapter.

Considine is assistant managing editor of THE DOLPHIN and was the delegate to the national convention of the Alpha Sigma Nu, held in St. Louis.

Lois Walsh, the newly-elected secretary, is a chemistry major and holds memberships in the Glee Club, the Student Council, the Sodality, the Chemistry Club and the Bishop Foery Circle.

Lois is a graduate of the Convent School where she served as president of the Student Council. She was also valedictorian of her class.

Miss Walsh, who is a member of Gamma Pi Epsilon, Le Moyne chapter of the National Jesuit Honorary Society for women, has the distinction of having attained an "A" in every course she has thus far studied at Le Moyne.

Nick Capozza is a soft-spoken, popular student, majoring in Accounting and comes well-qualified for the position of Senior Class treasurer.

Nick, who is president of the Accounting Club and a former member of the Student Council, is a graduate of Central High School.

He served as a paratrooper for three years during World War II

S. C. Makes Plans for Pep Rally Prior To Siena Game

Plans have been made by the Student Council to hold a pep rally prior to the Siena game, which will be played on Thanksgiving Day in Albany. Since this game is perhaps the most anticipated one of the season, the Student Council proposed an exhibition for Tuesday evening, November 20, at 8:00 p. m. There will be a torchlight parade, ending with a bonfire which will be held in the west parking lot of the College. The Student Council is also working on some new ideas, such as floats and demonstrations from the various Le Moyne Clubs and Organizations. Both the Student Council and the Mohawk Valley Club are cooperating to make this pep rally a smashing success. The chairman of this committee is Bob Rowlee.

At the last meeting, the Council was addressed by Red Cross representative, Gloria Meyering, and a Syracuse University chapter representative, Ginger Rich. The former requested that a Red Cross Unit be started at Le Moyne College. No plans have been made but the subject has been referred to a committee. On Friday, October 19, the Red Cross Bloodmobile was at the School to accept blood donations.

The Student Council also announced that over $100 was collected for the "Crusade for Freedom."

The Freshman Dance, whose purpose was to acquaint the freshmen with the upperclassmen, was very successful. Approximately 400 were present to begin the social activities for the year.

The Student Council also sponsored a collection for a farewell gift for Rev. Vincent Ryan, S.J., and Rev. Theodore Clarkon, S.J., who recently left the Le Moyne faculty to join the Army. Both priests were presented with albs and spiritual bouquets on behalf of the student body.

and was wounded in action in Germany.

Capozza is married and resides with his wife at 810 Kirkpatrick Street.

Commenting on the number of Seniors who cast their ballots, Rev. Andrew J. Brady, S.J., Student Counselor, said the election showed "very good spirit." Father Brady said 98 per cent of the Seniors voted for their class officers.

Dolphin Dance Inaugurates New Social Season; Informal Slated for Tomorrow Night Promises to Be a Repeat Success

The first major, informal dance of the Le Moyne year will be held tomorrow evening, October 26, in the Le Moyne Auditorium under the auspices of the college paper, the DOLPHIN. Mario DeSantis' Orchestra will play from 9 to 1. Admission will be at $1.80 per couple.

As is well known, the DOLPHIN annually sponsors this dance to inaugurate the Le Moyne social season. In past years, the dance has been a huge success with the students. This season the event promises to be even more successful and more popular than its predecessors.

Members of the various committees in charge of the arrangements have all enthusiastically endorsed the plans for a bigger and better dance this October 26. These committee members are: Bob Berterton, General Chairman; Bill Spinelli, Orchestra Committee; John Considine, Refreshment Committee; Eunice Caskins, Publicity Committee; Harding Gordon, Ticket Committee; Bill Hickey, Arrangements Committee; Joan O'Mara, Decoration Committee.

Tickets may be obtained at the DOLPHIN Office from any member of the staff, or at the door tomorrow evening.

Urgently Needed: Copies of the DOLPHIN, Volume 1, Number 1. These issues will complete the files of the DOLPHIN. They are badly needed for reference work. Please cooperate.

Curtain Up on B&B Matinee Theater; "Romeo & Juliet" 1st Major Production

The Boot and Buskin has really started the year off with a bang. The cries of "Curtain going up," echoed through our hallowed halls on Monday afternoon, October 15. The occasion was the first production of the season, when the Boot and Buskin presented its first "Matinee Theater." "Dear Departed," the play presented, is an English comedy, and was enthusiastically acclaimed by all who attended the premiere. The Club plans to give different one-act plays throughout the college year. This plan has been followed very successfully at Fordham. Its advantages are numerous. It not only gives the students an opportunity to see the Boot and Buskin in action, but also, allows more of the members of the Club to participate in plays and helps them to acquire stage presence. The matinee will be held four afternoons every week—Monday through Thursday. The cost—just one dime. It is hoped that the Student Body will avail itself of this wonderful opportunity of seeing these talented players in action.

It is not too soon to start looking forward to attending the major production of the semester. Those who have witnessed the Shakespearean plays directed by Mr. Gene McCarthy, are assured of the perfection they will find in the production of "Romeo and Juliet" beginning November 10th.

It has been announced that the Jesuit Play Festival might be held at Le Moyne in February. This would bring players from eight Jesuit Colleges of the country, who would be entered in the competition. Mr. McCarthy said this certainly would be a great honor for our college and that he sincerely hoped that Le Moyne would be designated as the host for this festival.

Mr. Gene McCarthy, director of the Boot and Buskin, gives Mary Therese Ryan a few pointers on the correct reading of a line as Pia Schwegler looks on intently.

Among the unsung organizations of the college is the one which does all the singing, namely, the Glee Club.

This group held its initial meeting on Wednesday, October 10. Approximately 35 new members were present.

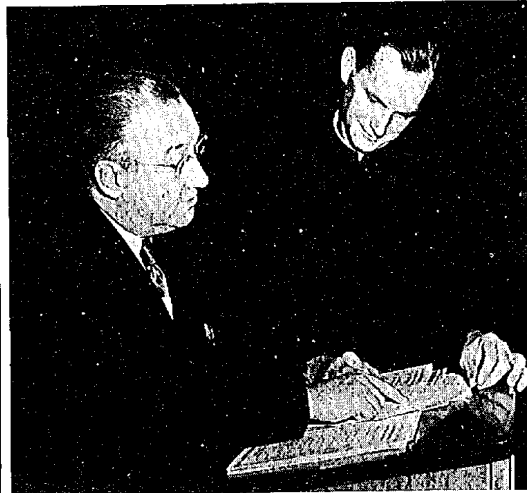

The club, this year, is under the direction of Mr. Leo A. Fisselbrand, A.A.G.O. Prior to his appointment to Le Moyne, Mr. Fisselbrand was organist and choir director of St. Anthony of Padua Church. A graduate of Syracuse University and a student in organ and composition under Joseph J. McGrath, Mr. Fisselbrand has been an active member in local music circles for the past two years.

He directed a group of 1,200 Catholic school children when they sang the Mass in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception which opened the Syracuse Catholic Music Education Conference.

After participating in the music program at the consecration of Bishop Cunningham on June 8, 1951, Mr. Fisselbrand directed the New York State Fair Chorus for the Catholic Hymn of the 1951 Fair. More recently, he conducted this same group at the opening of the Onondaga County War Memorial.

Mr. Fisselbrand is not the Glee Club's only 1951 addition. The organization has a new moderator, Rev. Edward McGlinchey, S.J. Father is a second year man at Le Moyne, and one well-known to the Heights' struggling student philosophers. A former resident of Jersey City, Father McGlinchey was a member of the St. Peter's College (Jersey City) Glee Club. Under the guidance of two such capable men, the Glee Club is certain to have a successful year.

Mr. Leo Fisselbrand, left, and the Rev. Edward H. McGlinchey, S.J., director and moderator, respectively, of the Le Moyne College Glee Club, are shown going over some of the group's plans for this year.

"Dear Departed" Reviewed; Matinee Theater Promises Successful Season

By Mary Lou Sloan and Don Musico

On Tuesday afternoon, October sixteenth, we were among a scant but appreciative audience of Le Moyne students who wisely postponed rushing for the bus and instead took in the matinee performance of the one-act play, "Dear Departed," presented by the Boot and Buskin. The plot concerns the underhanded division of the spoils from Grandpa's death and the comical developments arising when Grandpa enters alive and fully recovered from his comatose hangover.

The play dealt with lower middle-class English people and called for the actors to speak as such. We realize any accent is hard to imitate without a lot of practice. Cockney is especially difficult to do without dropping the "h's" so obviously that they can be heard hitting the floor.

Virginia Thomasmeyer played the mother who stopped trying to cry for Grandpa long enough to secure his desk and clock. It was an "ard" part and she did it well. The father, a stock character, was presented as the henpecked husband of a domineering wife by Skip Van Deusen who exhibited admirable stage presence. In appearance he was thoroughly English. Their daughter, Victoria, who was Barbara Orpello, scurried on and off stage as a dutiful child should. We give Barbara credit for not attempting the Cockney accent.

Toni Brennan, who is remembered at Le Moyne for her portrayal of Ophelia in "Hamlet," added a brighter flame to her lamp of dramatic achievement by her impeccable portrayal of Elizabeth, Grandpa's other daughter, whose bereavement was as fluctuating as her change of fortune. Joe Sullivan, as Elizabeth's husband, had a small part but a good one, and made it extremely convincing and humorous.

Grandpa, the "departed one," (if a hangover can be considered as being departed) was played by John Touhey who couldn't seem to make up his mind whether he was English or Irish. In spite of this, Mr. Touhey filled his role perfectly.

We were glad to see such excellent scenery and costuming. It helped the illusion of the play and showed that the players were not taking these matinees lightly but were putting just as much work into them as if they were the major projects.

Deadline for Dolphin Literary Contest Set At November 28th

The literary contest which is open to all students is being sponsored by the editors of the DOLPHIN. Essays, short stories, criticisms, and featured articles are welcomed.

The only restriction is that a work must be original and heretofore unpublished. For specific details regarding typing and size of paper, re-read the rules which appeared in the last issue of the DOLPHIN.

The contest will be judged by members of the English department and all accepted manuscripts will be printed in a literary supplement to the DOLPHIN. If interest is displayed by the student body a regular literary magazine may be published. The deadline for the contest is November 28.

Pres. of Canisius Speaks at First Alumni Banquet

The first annual banquet of the Le Moyne College Alumni Association was held Saturday, October 13th, at the Hotel Onondaga. Those attending included the members of the first graduating class of Le Moyne College, members of the college Board of Regents, and the lay and Jesuit members of the college faculty.

The main speaker of the evening was Very Rev. Raymond W. Schouten, S.J., president of Canisius College, Buffalo. Father Schouten, addressing the large group, said, "No college can have a finer addition to its faculty, its plant and its academic curriculum than a strong, progressive, learned Alumni." He stated that much of the weakness in colleges was a result of a weak alumni, and he stressed that to counteract this weakness, the alumni should understand the function and persuasive influence of education.

The "kick-off" banquet, which began at 7:00 p. m., also featured short addresses by the alumni president, George C. Kunz, and the executive secretary of the association, William F. Topp. Opening remarks were made by the Very Rev. William J. Schlaerth, S.J., the president of Le Moyne College. All speakers were introduced by William W. Kerrigan, class president and toastmaster of the banquet.

Chaumonot Forum Holds Initial Meeting; Debators Travel to Colgate and Vermont

The first general meeting of all members and aspiring candidates of the Chaumonot Forum was held on Friday, October 12th, at 9 a. m. in the Penthouse Lounge. On behalf of the Chaumonot, Jerry Tucker, President, welcomed both veterans and recruits. To the latter he said, "If this Frosh crop does half as well as last year's, the year will be a success!" The rapidly growing interest of students in debating was inspirational to the moderator, Mr. J. Alan Davitt, S.J. His opinion—"the more, the merrier."

Heading the Chaumonot agenda is the New York State Debate Coaches' Conference at Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., on October 13th. Representing Le Moyne at this conference were Thomas E. Burns, vice-president of the Chaumonot, and Jerry Tucker.

Saturday, November 13th, the Novice Debating Team (debators with less than six months of intercollegiate debating experience) will engage in their first debate of the Hamilton College Tourney, in Clinton, N. Y. Le Moyne will be represented by two teams: Audrey Zilloux, Natalie Gilroy, Raymond Zimmer, Leonard Franklin, Robert Pender, MaryAnne Hogan, Michael Quinn and Harding Gordon.

On November 9-10, Gerald Tucker, Thomas Burns and Maureen Gaynor and Mary Therese King will represent Le Moyne varsity teams in their first debates

Dean Speaks to Guild About Education; B&B Presents Play

The first regular meeting of the Le Moyne College Guild was held Friday, October 13, in the auditorium. The purpose of the Guild is to foster a closer relationship between the faculty and the parents and friends of Le Moyne. During this meeting reports were given on last year's work and committees were formed to handle this year's activities.

After the business meeting, the members heard a talk by Rev. Francis J. Fallon, S.J., Dean of Studies. Fr. Fallon discussed the subject of liberal education and, in particular, the way that concept is applied to Le Moyne.

The third event of the evening was the performance of a play written and directed by Mr. Gene McCarthy. This one-act play, "Edge of Hate," was presented by members of the Boot & Buskin. Immediately following the play, refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Presiding over these activities were the social secretaries of the Guild, Mrs. Edward F. Lang and Mrs. Paul E. Magnan. The co-chairmen of hostesses were Mrs. Edward Whelan and Mrs. Robert Dotterer.

in the University of Vermont Tournament, at Burlington, Vt.

Suzanne Murray, the corresponding secretary of the Chaumonot, is scheduling debates with colleges Le Moyne debated last year. The complete schedule will be printed in the next issue of the DOLPHIN.

Since the Forensic Commission of N.F.C.C.S. has recommended work in the discussion field with Catholic High School Seniors, the discussion department of the Chaumonot will continue its correspondence program for a second straight year. The Coordinator of the N.F.C.C.S. and the Chaumonot is Suzanne McClusky. In charge of the Freshman discussion group, whose topic is "Why Go to a Catholic College?" are Suzanne McClusky, Gerald LeBlanc and Jack McCarty. In charge of the Upperclassmen discussion group, whose topic is "Collegians and the Lay Apostolate," is Winifred Coleman. Plans for various members of the faculty, laymen, and secular clergy to address the discussion groups are under way.

Plans for a social are in the hands of a committee. Also, there will definitely be a banquet for the Chaumonot members in the near future.

You Sing, We Sing, Let's Sing

You've seen it happen. If you're normal you've probably experienced it. The one thing that seems to unite the Sons of Old Eli and the thing that brings the boys from the banks of the Raritan together, seems to be missing at Le Moyne.

Get the picture now. A given group of students meet, with relaxation as their only object. They're from Le Moyne. They talk easily and seem to enjoy being a part of that which is Le Moyne. Finally as the evening wears on, one or two of the group start to sing, soft and low. The others join in. You know the songs: "The Old Mill Stream," "I Had a Dream, Dear," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and all the old stand-bys. Then come the college songs: "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," "White Star of Sigma Nu," "The Maine Stein Song," and don't forget the poor old "Whiffenpoofs."

But what has happened, Le Moyne students, brought together by the fact that they are Le Moyne students, sit and talk and sing the songs of schools they have never seen. How can a student body that doesn't sing the same songs, be united? Where are the Le Moyne songs? It's time for a little "Rah, Rah!" and "I'd Die for Dear Old Rutgers" spirit. The first step is an Alma Mater.

We realize that Le Moyne is only in its fifth year. We realize that these other schools have been going and singing their songs for years. But to the attitude that there is plenty of time for such sentimentality, we say, hogwash! Sure, we're sentimental, so what!

The question of an Alma Mater has been kicked around before. Contests have been held but they didn't work. Students have been asked to write a school song and some entries have been received. But no one takes any positive action. Let's hear 'em all, take a straw vote and adopt a song now. It can always be changed. At least a start in Dolphin tradition will be made.

Basketball season will be starting in a few weeks. Let's not go through another year with just the "Star Spangled Banner" to sing before the game or "Buckle Down Winssocki." to sing after.

You like to sing. We like to sing. Everyone likes to sing. Let's have some Le Moyne songs, not parodies, but Le Moyne songs, to get hoarse on.

With Honor Goes Responsibility

The election for Senior Class officers is a thing of the past. In the most razzle-dazzle campaign for political office that this youthful college has ever seen, the parties and candidates strove to outdo each other in the line of "political gimmicks" and machinations. On the opening day of the campaign, the Four-Star Action Party offered two tickets to the Fordham-Syracuse game to the senior who would best complete the four-star rhyme. Not to be outdone, another party paraded around the campus with a cavalcade of automobiles, with each car bearing a huge poster announcing that "Flynn was the man." Another innovation was the appearance of three Indians, with headdress and all, outside the cafeteria, who exclaimed to anyone who would listen, the many advantages of the T. P. Party.

But election day has come and gone. The members of the Senior Class demonstrated their interest in their choice of officers by turning out at the polls in a manner never before seen on the Heights, with more than 98 per cent of the eligible voters participating. This most remarkable turnout is definitely worthy of commendation and praise.

Now, the Senior Class officers must pick up the gauntlet that the Senior Class has thrown down. Planning for Senior Week must begin now, so that there will be a smooth functioning of social events in our last week as Seniors. In order that Senior Week may be realized at all, the Senior officers must come up with a few money-making schemes, so that the coffers of the Senior treasury may be filled. Capable people must be selected so that the Senior variety show, "High Jinx and Low Grades," will surpass the first, and in short, make the second another first. There is much to be done and the sooner 'tis done the better!

The Senior Class members have demonstrated their faith in their officers by electing them. It is now time for them to show that they are worthy of this trust and cognizant of the fact that with the honor which they have received goes a responsibility, which must be met.

THE TROTTER POLL

By JOHN CONSIDINE

One Step Behind the Gallup Poll

We, as college students, are beset with two pressing problems: one, the NATIONAL EMERGENCY; the other—COLLEGIATE STUDIES. So, today, we try to discern whether there is a cause-effect between the two. The question is, "Do you think the National Emergency has caused the teachers to ease up on students?"

I. Ann Woolver—"No thoughts on the subject. No time to think about it." (That about answers the question).

II. Bill White—"I say no. As far as the teaching profession goes, I do not believe they know there is national emergency." (Now don't be bitter).

III. Gerry Tucker—"Which national emergency? After 24 hours of meditation on the subject, I think the question should be reversed." (Egads, a Philosopher).

IV. Jack Wigg—"I would say no. If anything it has made professors and students realize that learning more about their specific fields, they will be better adapted to meet the problems that are before us today." (Such problems as Ethics and Psychology, maybe?)

V. Whitey McPherson—"No! In view of the recent Ethics test, it is a necessary and foregone conclusion that the present teaching practices have reverted to the old methods of the inquisition." (Father McGann had you on the rack, eh, Whitey?)

VI. Clifford Klaisle—"No, why should they? (I give up, why?)

VII. Ken Norton—"The viewpoint of the teacher is diametrically opposed to that of the student." (Thank you, Mr. Norton, now back to the news).

VIII. Bud Kane—"I should certainly say not—not in this school, anyway. Last year I heard that the criterion of truth was objective evidence—that's why!" (I suppose you're right).

IX. Joan Burns—"Holy cats. Are you kidding? No, but they don't call me the griper for nothing. Ask Fr. Kennedy." (Well, now we are finally coming to gripes).

X. Anita Moretti—"No. I'm not wearing these bags under my eyes for nothing." (We wouldn't, either).

XI. Bill Atkinson—"The way I feel right now—no. The Jesuit tradition will never change, regardless of how many emergencies." (That's what we were afraid of).

XII. Ted Gregg—"No! Because of the National Emergency, the teachers feel that men are needed in the Service." (Aha! Father Fallon and General Hershey are in cahoots!)

The Blue Swordsman

One of the quickest and surest ways of meriting Heaven is a faithful and real devotion to our Blessed Mother. But we cannot increase our love, our willingness to give all we have for Mary's use, simply by knowing a few salient facts about her relation to God and ourselves. In order to have a true devotion to Mary, we must continually cultivate and increase our knowledge concerning her position in God's plan. This is true because love increases with knowledge.

We must learn of Mary, for example, not only that she is Mediatrix of All Graces, but also that she holds this title for a reason and that she has a certain function as Mediatrix. We know, too, that she is our Mother, but do we ever look into this fact? Do we know, besides many other reasons, that she is our Mother because she is the Mother of Christ, of whose Mystical Body we are all members, and therefore CHILDREN OF HIS MOTHER?

There are many truths about Mary which we all have at least a surface knowledge of, but in order to confirm our devotion to Mary, it is best to cooperate with grace by learning everything we can about her place in God's plan, and then by making use of all we learn. One of the best ways of obtaining this knowledge and of learning its practical application to daily life is the Sodality way of life.

NFCCS Erie Region Convenes on Heights; Congress Lays Plans for Active Year

The Erie Region of the National Federation of Catholic College Students held its first meeting of the 1951-52 academic year on October 6, in the College Penthouse Lounge.

John Schoeneck of Le Moyne presided over the Congress which consisted of delegates from nine other Catholic colleges in the region: St. Bonaventure, Olean, N.Y.; Canisius and D'Youville, Buffalo, N.Y.; Gannon, Mercyhurst, and Villa Maria, Erie, Pa.; Nazareth, Rochester, N.Y.; Niagara, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Rosary Hill, Eggertsville, N.Y.

The Council was addressed by Rev. William L. Schlaerth, S.J., President of Le Moyne, who stressed to the delegates the need for Catholic Action on the part of Catholic college students. Father Schlaerth encouraged the Federation in its work for the coming year. Plans for new projects and reports of last year's activities were brought before the delegates. Highlighting the afternoon session was the selection of a theme for the 1951-52 term, "Through you to Him."

To put these words into action, the Erie Region began work on the N.F.C.C.S. project of the year, that is, to give talks to high school students on the need for a Catholic College education. Each college will be responsible for the high schools in its city.

The Congress delegates decided to increase the efficiency at council meetings and in the Lake Erie Region in general, reports of activities are to be sent to the President and Commission Chairmen as soon as completed.

The region's next meeting will be held at Mercyhurst College Erie, Pa., on December 1, 1951.

Sodality Pilgrims Visit Auriesville; Honor First American Jesuit Martyrs

On Sunday, October 14, seventy-five members of Le Moyne's Sodality of Our Lady journeyed on a pilgrimage to the Shrine of the North American Martyrs at Auriesville, N.Y. It was at Auriesville that Saint Isaac Jogues and his seven companions, to whom the Chapel here at Le Moyne is dedicated, were martyred during their missionary activities among the Mohawk Indians.

The Sodality arrived from Syracuse in their 15-car convoy and assembled at the main gate at 12:30 p. m. Upon arriving at the Shrine, the Sodality walked in procession to the Coliseum, reciting the Rosary as they walked. At the Coliseum they attended Mass, which was offered by Rev. C. E. F. Hoefner, S.J., Dean of Men, who gave a very inspiring sermon.

At 2:30 p. m., the Sodality assembled for the Stations of the Cross, which are located on the Hill of Prayer, so named because it is believed that there the North American Martyrs, with prayer on their lips, were put to death by the savages.

The day's program was drawn to conclusion with a triple Benediction at 3:30 p. m. The first Benediction was held in the Coliseum, and from there the Blessed Sacrament was carried in solemn procession to the scene of the second Benediction, a wayside shrine of Our Lady. From the shrine of Our Lady, the procession continued to the ravine where it is believed that Rene Goupil was tomahawked to death by the Indians, and laid to rest there by Saint Isaac Jogues. The final Benediction was held at this spot.

Then, after a most memorable day, the Sodality returned to Syracuse. Rev. Andrew Brady, S.J., said that the trip to the historic shrine, which proved to be interesting as well as informative, should be taken by all students in the course of their college life.

Alpha Sigma Nu Meets in St. Louis

Delegates from 21 chapters of Alpha Sigma Nu, national Jesuit Honor Fraternity, met in St. Louis October 18 and 19 to hold their annual two-day convention and to elect national officers for the coming year. Representatives from chapters as far away as San Francisco, New Orleans and Mobile were present at the sessions held at the luxurious Melbourne Hotel, situated across the street from the campus of St. Louis University.

calls for the general support of Catholic education and the specific support of Jesuit education. The national convention hopes to bring this about by the institution of a symposium on the value of a Jesuit education in the chapter schools, so that the student bodies would become more fully aware of the ideals and aims of their Jesuit educators. On the local level, the convention favored a yearly report to the President of each college by the local chapter of Alpha Sigma Nu, evaluating such things as the general conditions in the school, the university activities and the external influence of other groups upon the school.

Elected to the office of national president of Alpha Sigma Nu was William C. Rodgers, a graduate of Loyola College of Baltimore, and former vice-president of the Jesuit honorary. Paul Elward, a graduate of the College of Arts and Sciences, as well as the Law School of Loyola University of Chicago will fill the vice-president post. The incumbent, Dr. Hugo Hellman, director of the school of speech at Marquette University, was returned to office as national secretary-treasurer of the organization. The Jesuit moderator for the group is the Rev. Richard Ryan, S.J., Assistant Dean of the College of Arts at St. Louis University.

Le Moyne College was represented by John J. Considine, president of the Le Moyne Chapter of Alpha Sigma Nu and assistant managing editor of the DOLPHIN.

WOMEN'S ANGLE

By Ann Giordano

"Women like not only to conquer, but to be conquered."—Thackeray

Father McCorry's return to the Heights as Retreat Master for the women brought back happy memories of his many diatribes on the foibles of the female sex. I think a woman's opinion on the subject should be voiced. It must have seemed strange to many that despite Father's various scoldings to the feminine half of mankind, the women came back in droves and asked for more. But this phenomenon can be explained easily in a few words, that most men, and even a few women, will find hard to believe. The simple, unmentioned fact is that women unconsciously agree with everything that was said, whether they realize it or not. One point especially caught my interest, and that is Father McCorry's statement that a woman's position is "essential but subordinate." Most men fail to see that women are aware of the fact, and what's more, they wouldn't want it any other way. We are perfectly willing to be treated as subordinate, as long as we are regarded at the same time as essential. Of course, most women would never admit it, but given a choice, 99 times out of 100 they would prefer the rank of boatswain's mate to ship's captain anytime. That's a fact—it's according to woman's nature to be happiest under such a set-up.

Aside to the Women—For a good insight into the "essential" element of a woman's nature, take a look at James Barrie's delightful play, "What Every Woman Knows."

Personal Gripe Dept. . . . Social—or Anti-Social? At the risk of rehearsing a delicate subject, why, oh, why, do fellows at Le Moyne attend a dance to stand around and talk? The Freshman Social looked more like a meeting of the U.N. on many parts of the dance floor. What gives, anyway? What variety of plant or animal have we here—budding wallflower or the dancing's-no-fun gi?

More over, Mrs. Zaharias, we're coming in! Ignoring the male jibes and groans of protest, the ladies of Le Moyne are seriously considering the game of golf. Under the sponsorship of the Bishop Poery

Club, two classes have been signed, and elementary instructions will begin shortly at Charles Andrews.

At the first meeting, Mr. Grygiel, golf pro at Drumhins, explained the fundamentals of the game. Come Spring, the men won't be the only ones whose fancy lightly turns to thoughts of pars and birdies, and the smell of fresh green grass. When we get out on the links, don't say we didn't warn you beFOREhand.

I thought the World Series had everyone TV-conscious for a week, but apparently some sweet young things were unaffected by it all. One wide-eyed, winsome asked for her opinion on the Giants' chances, answered quite innocently, "I don't know, dearie. I never follow football." Wonder what Doak Walker's latest batting average is?

It's a Man's World—as far as horseback riding is concerned. To date one lonesome gal has accepted the invitation to sign up for instruction. I guess the expression, "Slop Along With Hopalong," as one prof coined it, leaves most women cold.

Thought in Passing . . . Why don't more men go out for cheer-leading? From the action seen at the Siena tournament game, I'd say that some guys were hoarding a lot of their talent.

Dolphin Sportlights

From the looks of things, the Dolphins should have a good chance of winning the first contest of the season against Siena. We glanced through their sports column the other day and came to the conclusion that as yet they have not fully recovered from the two beatings which we administered last year. They seem to be suffering from shell shock. Mill Benoit, sports editor of the SIENA NEWS, still has the newspaper clipping of the Indians' loss in the N.C.I.T. hanging on the wall in his office. He's afraid that "always tough for Siena" Le Moyne will give a pair of repeat performances this year when the two teams meet.

Speaking of the opening game with Siena, naturally brings us to the Pep Rally. The committee in charge of the rally has arranged a program for the evening that makes all the previous attempts to build a team following look sick. Of prime importance in this affair is student cooperation. We have the opposition worried. Coach Niland has one of the finest basketball aggregations in this section. If the student body will only make an effort to support the team, Le Moyne will have another winner.

FORDHAM VS. SYRACUSE

We have the habit of going out on the limb for almost anything. This is an occupational hazard common to sports writers. During the baseball season we selected the Yankees and the Giants for the top position in their respective leagues when the season closed. We hate to say we told you so, but we did. Last issue we predicted Fordham would be one of the better teams in the country. A strong Holy Cross squad altered our opinion slightly. Nevertheless, after witnessing the recent classic struggle between the Illini and Bill Orange we feel certain that the Rams will have very little trouble subduing the forces of Piety Hill. Roger Franz, the kingpin in the Rose Hill offense, has proven himself to be a match for any quarter back in the East. Apparently the Syracuse University coaching staff is having a little difficulty replacing Pat Stark who was injured in the first game of the campaign. Anyone who saw the Illinois game is conscious of the fact that the Orange must have been flipping a coin to decide on the next play. At any rate, we're picking the Rams to roll up an easy victory.

OLD WARRIORS IN THE NEWS

Don Savage is still bucking for a spot on the Nats roster. It seems that the Nationals have six men but have only three vacancies. We read the local newspapers to find out how the ex-Dolphin captain was working out, but the more we read the more nebulous the whole affair becomes. The publicists for the Syracuse Nats can't seem to agree on Savage's status. We feel that the local club would lose a good man should Savage be cut. After watching a recent workout between the Dolphins and the Nats, it becomes obvious that Savage would be a tremendous asset in getting the Nats back on the top rung in the tremendous asset in getting the Nats back on the top rung in the league.

In a recent issue we mentioned that Norb King was undergoing an operation on his back for a wound he received in the last war. Norb, in the meantime, has been forced to return to the hospital for a second operation. We have been unable to find out how successful the operations have been, but we're all hoping that he recovers soon.

SEASON BROADCAST

There is just a chance that all the Dolphin basketball games will be broadcast this season, that is, both home and away games. Red Parton will be back at his old stand behind the microphone again this season.

The intramural league must have become a little more than just touch tackle in recent weeks. One of the stalwart linemen for a six-man squad went through the meat grinder during a hard-fought contest. Frank King, a Junior entry, broke his nose in eight places and suffered a slight concussion when he was blocked by a member of the opposition. It would probably be better if the boys stayed loose and didn't take the game quite so seriously. King is out for the remainder of the season.

The game against St. Francis of Brooklyn, which has just been added to the slate, could turn out to be a grudge game. It was the same Brooklyn men which eliminated the Dolphins in the Third round of the N.C.I.T. at Albany. Of course, this is another and the story could be different.

Hand and Jenkins Elected Co-Captains of Dolphins For 1951-52 Cage Season

The 1951-52 version of the Le Moyne College Dolphins have elected their new court leaders for the coming basketball campaign. Although this marks the fifth season for the young college, this will be the first time that Don Savage will not make an appearance as captain of the Green and Gold.

In a closed practice, the quintet selected Jim Hand, a Senior, and Bill Jenkins, a Junior, to handle the running of the squad. They will be the first Dolphin co-captains.

Jim Hand is one of the only two Seniors on the varsity. In high school, Jim played three sports: football, basketball, and track, winning letters in all of them. As a cinderman, Hand ran with a championship two-mile relay team which set a state record. Basketball, however, held more interest for him than the others. In his first year at Le Moyne he paced the yearlings with 151 points for the regular season. Numerous and recurrent injuries have hampered his play but in spite of this Jim has always been up near the top in the scoring column. Outside of his business course, Jim spends quite a bit of time learning Navy jargon. When he graduates, Jim, who is a member of the local N.R.O.T.C., will be an ensign in the U.S.N. The cager's home is in Lynbrook, L.I., where he attended Malverne High School.

Besides Don Savage of 1600-point fame, Bill Jenkins is the most prolific scorer on the varsity. Bill is the possessor of every shot in the books. In play, his biggest asset is his agile mind. Invariably he is two or three plays ahead of any other player on the court. His set shots are deadly, his passing is perfect. Jenkins held quite a grip on the athletic scene of his high school as well. In four years he managed to play at one time or another: football, baseball, basketball, and soccer. When he was a member of the St. Vincent quintet, he was elected captain on three successive years during which time he placed on numerous All-Star and All-Parochial League aggregations. At present he holds the Scholastic high scoring record for Syracuse. Bill, a Junior, in his first and only year of varsity competition, collected 362 points. Jenkins is a business student and foresees nothing in the future except service with the forces of Uncle Sam.

Terriers Complete Dolphin Schedule

The Le Moyne College Athletic Association has announced that the Terriers of St. Francis College have been added to the schedule for the coming campaign. This game is to be played in the 14th Regiment Armory in Brooklyn.

The contest will become a part of a three-game road trip for the Dolphins to New York City. Seton Hall and St. Peter's College of Jersey City will provide the other competition. The games are to be played on successive nights, December 5, 6, and 7.

The Terriers are not newcomers to the Dolphin slate. Two seasons ago they made an appearance on the Coliseum hardwood and defeated the Le Moyne quintet. This was the contest, however, in which Captain Don Savage of the Dolphins set an all-time scoring mark for the State Fair Grounds with 40 markers in a single contest. In last year's N.C.I.T. tournament it was the Brooklyn squad which knocked the Le Moyne five out of

COACH HUGHES MEN LED BY MATTHEWS DEFEAT HARTWICK

Every college has its ups and downs in sports. Some schools go years in sports without ever winning an athletic contest. More fortunate institutions rack up undefeated streaks that last for great periods of time. Of the more fortunate, Hartwick College has had a winning streak in cross-country that went from early September, 1949, to October 6, 1951. On Saturday, the 6th, Le Moyne engaged the great Hartwick harriers and finally set them back. It was the first meet loss to the Lutheran aggregation in over three full seasons of running.

It's hard to single out any one individual who changed victory for Hartwick into defeat. Jimmy Matthews won the individual laurels by simply never being headed after the 2-mile mark. He triumphed in 23 minutes 39 seconds. Captain Joe Ficaro couldn't catch Matthews in the last half mile and had to be content with second place. "Marathon Joe" ran 20 seconds behind the winner.

Andy Van Buren, George DeSantis, and Pete Crene, all Hartwick harriers, rounded out the first five finishers of the 20-man field.

John Rayo ran sixth for the Dolphins. The Le Moyne No. 3 man gained tremendously from 9th place to his final position only on the last hill. It was Rayo's first appearance this year in running. Zetnick of the Lutherans ran seventh and was followed in eighth by sprinter-quarter-miler Dick May. The No. 4 Dolphin, runner was not in a position to catch Zetnick or be passed himself at the wire.

Frank Parris came into view in tenth place but put on a great drive at the end to complete the Le Moyne team, finishing ninth. Parris nipped Andy Pawlas of Hartwick within 50 yards of the wire.

Much of the credit of the great Dolphin victory is owed to Coach Hughes. "Now I don't want you boys braining yourselves in the beginning. This race lasts 5 miles. If Hartwick wants to blast the beginning, let them. You've got time to come up. That's the way I want you to run it," Pat Hughes advised. His tactics paid off because the Lutheran aggregation did fade as the results prove. The final reading: Hartwick 29; Le Moyne 26. (Low score wins in cross-country).

The first general meeting of all members and aspiring candidates of the Chaumonot Forum was held on Friday, October 12th, at 9 a. m. in the Penthouse Lounge. On behalf of the Chaumonot, Jerry Tucker, President, welcomed both veterans and recruits. To the latter he said, "If this Frosh crop does half as well as last year's, the year will be a success!" The rapidly growing interest of students in debating was inspirational to the moderator, Mr. J. Alan Davitt, S.J. His opinion—"the more, the merrier."

Heading the Chaumonot agenda is the New York State Debate Coaches' Conference at Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., on October 13th. Representing Le Moyne at this conference were Thomas E. Burns, vice-president of the Chaumonot, and Jerry Tucker.

Saturday, November 13th, the Novice Debating Team (debators with less than six months of intercollegiate debating experience) will engage in their first debate of the Hamilton College Tourney, in Clinton, N. Y. Le Moyne will be represented by two teams: Audrey Zilloux, Natalie Gilroy, Raymond Zimmer, Leonard Franklin, Robert Pender, MaryAnne Hogan, Michael Quinn and Harding Gordon.

On November 9-10, Gerald Tucker, Thomas Burns and Maureen Gaynor and Mary Therese King will represent Le Moyne varsity teams in their first debates

Dean Speaks to Guild About Education; B&B Presents Play

The first regular meeting of the Le Moyne College Guild was held Friday, October 13, in the auditorium. The purpose of the Guild is to foster a closer relationship between the faculty and the parents and friends of Le Moyne. During this meeting reports were given on last year's work and committees were formed to handle this year's activities.

After the business meeting, the members heard a talk by Rev. Francis J. Fallon, S.J., Dean of Studies. Fr. Fallon discussed the subject of liberal education and, in particular, the way that concept is applied to Le Moyne.

The third event of the evening was the performance of a play written and directed by Mr. Gene McCarthy. This one-act play, "Edge of Hate," was presented by members of the Boot & Buskin. Immediately following the play, refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Presiding over these activities were the social secretaries of the Guild, Mrs. Edward F. Lang and Mrs. Paul E. Magnan. The chairmen of hostesses were Mrs. Edward Whelan and Mrs. Robert Dolterer.

In the University of Vermont Tournament, at Burlington, Vt. Suzanne Murray, the corresponding secretary of the Chaumonot, is scheduling debates with colleges Le Moyne debated last year. The complete schedule will be printed in the next issue of the DOLPHIN.

Since the Forensic Commission of N.F.C.C.S. has recommended work in the discussion field with Catholic High School Seniors, the discussion department of the Chaumonot will continue its correspondence program for a second straight year. The Coordinator of the N.F.C.C.S. and the Chaumonot is Suzanne McClusky. In charge of the Freshman discussion group, whose topic is "Why Go to a Catholic College?" are Suzanne McClusky, Gerald LeBlanc and Jack McCarty. In charge of the Upperclassmen discussion group, whose topic is "Collegians and the Lay Apostolate," is Winifred Coleman. Plans for various members of the faculty, laymen, and secular clergy to address the discussion groups are under way.

Plans for a social are in the hands of a committee. Also, there will definitely be a banquet for the Chaumonot members in the near future.

You Sing, We Sing, Let's Sing

You've seen it happen. If you're normal you've probably experienced it. The one thing that seems to unite the Sons of Old Eli and the thing that brings the boys from the banks of the Raritan together, seems to be missing at Le Moyne.

Get the picture now. A given group of students meet, with relaxation as their only object. They're from Le Moyne. They talk easily and seem to enjoy being a part of that which is Le Moyne. Finally as the evening wears on, one or two of the group start to sing, soft and low. The others join in. You know the songs: "The Old Mill Stream," "I Had a Dream, Dear," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and all the old stand-bys. Then come the college songs: "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," "White Star of Sigma Nu," "The Maine Stein Song," and don't forget the poor old "Whiffenpoofs."

But what has happened, Le Moyne students, brought together by the fact that they are Le Moyne students, sit and talk and sing the songs of schools they have never seen. How can a student body that doesn't sing the same songs, be united? Where are the Le Moyne songs? It's time for a little "Rah, Rah!" and "I'd Die for Dear Old Rutgers" spirit. The first step is an Alma Mater.

We realize that Le Moyne is only in its fifth year. We realize that these other schools have been going and singing their songs for years. But to the attitude that there is plenty of time for such sentimentality, we say, hogwash! Sure, we're sentimental, so what!

The question of an Alma Mater has been kicked around before. Contests have been held but they didn't work. Students have been asked to write a school song and some entries have been received. But no one takes any positive action. Let's hear 'em all, take a straw vote and adopt a song now. It can always be changed. At least a start in Dolphin tradition will be made.

Basketball season will be starting in a few weeks. Let's not go through another year with just the "Star Spangled Banner" to sing before the game or "Buckle Down Winssocki." to sing after.

You like to sing. We like to sing. Everyone likes to sing. Let's have some Le Moyne songs, not parodies, but Le Moyne songs, to get hoarse on.

With Honor Goes Responsibility

The election for Senior Class officers is a thing of the past. In the most razzle-dazzle campaign for political office that this youthful college has ever seen, the parties and candidates strove to outdo each other in the line of "political gimmicks" and "machinations." On the opening day of the campaign, the Four-Star Action Party offered two tickets to the Fordham-Syracuse game to the senior who would best complete the four-star rhyme. Not to be outdone, another party paraded around the campus with a cavalcade of automobiles, with each car bearing a huge poster announcing that "Flynn was the man." Another innovation was the appearance of three Indians, with headdress and all, outside the cafeteria, who exclaimed to anyone who would listen, the many advantages of the T. P. Party.

But election day has come and gone. The members of the Senior Class demonstrated their interest in their choice of officers by turning out at the polls in a manner never before seen on the Heights, with more than 98 per cent of the eligible voters participating. This most remarkable turnout is definitely worthy of commendation and praise.

Now, the Senior Class officers must pick up the gauntlet that the Senior Class has thrown down. Planning for Senior Week must begin now, so that there will be a smooth functioning of social events in our last week as Seniors. In order that Senior Week may be realized at all, the Senior officers must come up with a few money-making schemes, so that the coffers of the Senior treasury may be filled. Capable people must be selected so that the Senior variety show, "High Jinx and Low Grades," will surpass the first, and in short, make the second another first. There is much to be done and the sooner 'tis done the better!

The Senior Class members have demonstrated their faith in their officers by electing them. It is now time for them to show that they are worthy of this trust and cognizant of the fact that with the honor which they have received goes a responsibility, which must be met.

THE TROTTER POLL

By JOHN CONSIDINE

One Step Behind the Gallop Poll

We, as college students, are beset with two pressing problems: one, the NATIONAL EMERGENCY; the other—COLLEGIATE STUDIES. So, today, we try to discern whether there is a cause-effect between the two. The question is, "Do you think the National Emergency has caused the teachers to ease up on students?"

I. Ann Woolever—"No thoughts on the subject. No time to think about it." (That about answers the question).

II. Bill White—"I say no. As far as the teaching profession goes, I do not believe they know there is national emergency." (Now don't be Bitter).

III. Gerry Tucker—"Which national emergency? After 24 hours of meditation on the subject, I think the question should be reversed." (Egads, a Philosopher).

IV. Jack Wigg—"I would say no. If anything it has made professors and students realize that learning more about their specific fields, they will be better adapted to meet the problems that are before us today." (Such problems as Ethics and Psychology, maybe?)

V. Whitey McPherson—"No! In view of the recent Ethics test, it is a necessary and foregone conclusion that the present teaching practices have reverted to the old methods of the inquisition." (Father McGann had you on the rack, eh, Whitey?)

VI. Clifford Klaitse—"No, why should they? (I give up; why?)

VII. Ken Norton—"The viewpoint of the teacher is diametrically opposed to that of the student." (Thank you, Mr. Norton, now back to the news).

VIII. Bud Kane—"I should certainly say not—not in this school, anyway. Last year I heard that the criterion of truth was objective evidence—that's why!" (I suppose you're right).

IX. Joan Burns—"Holy cats. Are you kidding? No, but they don't call me the griper for nothing. Ask Fr. Kennedy." (Well, now we are finally coming to gripes).

X. Anita Moretti—"No. I'm not wearing these bags under my eyes for nothing." (We wouldn't, either).

XI. Bill Atkinson—"The way I feel right now—no. The Jesuit tradition will never change, regardless of how many emergencies." (That's what we were afraid of).

XII. Ted Gregg—"No! Because of the National Emergency, the teachers feel that men are needed in the Service." (Aha! Father Fallon and General Hershey are in cahoots!)

The Blue Swordsman

One of the quickest and surest ways of meriting Heaven is a faithful and real devotion to our Blessed Mother. But we cannot increase our love, our willingness to give all we have for Mary's use, simply by knowing a few salient facts about her relation to God and ourselves. In order to have a true devotion to Mary, we must continually cultivate and increase our knowledge concerning her position in God's plan. This is true because love increases with knowledge.

We must learn of Mary, for example, not only that she is Mediatrix of All Graces, but also that she holds this title for a reason and that she has a certain function as Mediatrix. We know, too, that she is our Mother, but do we ever look into this fact? Do we know, besides many other reasons, that she is our Mother because she is the Mother of Christ, of whose Mystical Body we are all members, and therefore CHILDREN of HIS MOTHER?

There are many truths about Mary which we all have at least a surface knowledge of, but in order to confirm our devotion to Mary, it is best to cooperate with grace by learning everything we can about her place in God's plan, and then by making use of all we learn. One of the best ways of obtaining this knowledge and of learning its practical application to daily life is the Sodality way of life.

The Erie Region of the National Federation of Catholic College Students held its first meeting of the 1951-52 academic year on October 6, in the College Penthouse Lounge.

John Schoeneck of Le Moyné presided over the Congress which consisted of delegates from nine other Catholic colleges in the region: St. Bonaventure, Olean, N.Y.; Canisius and D'Youville, Buffalo, N.Y.; Gannon, Mercyhurst, and Villa Maria, Erie, Pa.; Nazareth, Rochester, N.Y.; Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Rosary Hill, Eggertsville, N.Y.

The Council was addressed by Rev. William L. Schlaerth, S.J., President of Le Moyné, who stressed to the delegates the need for Catholic Action on the part of Catholic college students. Father Schlaerth encouraged the Federation in its work for the coming year. Plans for new projects and reports of last year's activities were brought before the delegates.

Highlighting the afternoon session was the selection of a theme for the 1951-52 term, "Through you to Him."

To put these words into action, the Erie Region began work on the N.F.C.C.S. project of the year, that is, to give talks to high school students on the need for a Catholic College education. Each college will be responsible for the high schools in its city.

The Congress delegates decided to increase the efficiency at council meetings and in the Lake Erie Region in general, reports of activities are to be sent to the President and Commission Chairmen as soon as completed.

The region's next meeting will be held at Mercyhurst College Erie, Pa., on December 1, 1951.

Sodality Pilgrims Visit Auriesville; Honor First American Jesuit Martyrs

On Sunday, October 14, seventy-five members of Le Moyné's Sodality of Our Lady journeyed on a pilgrimage to the Shrine of the North American Martyrs at Auriesville, N.Y. It was at Auriesville that Saint Isaac Jogues and his seven companions, to whom the Chapel here at Le Moyné is dedicated, were martyred during their missionary activities among the Mohawk Indians.

The Sodality arrived from Syracuse in their 15-car convoy and assembled at the main gate at 12:30 p. m. Upon arriving at the Shrine, the Sodality walked in procession to the Coliseum, reciting the Rosary as they walked. At the Coliseum they attended Mass, which was offered by Rev. C. E. F. Hoefner, S.J., Dean of Men, who gave a very inspiring sermon.

At 2:30 p. m., the Sodality assembled for the Stations of the Cross, which are located on the Hill of Prayer, so named because it is believed that there the North American Martyrs, with prayer on their lips, were put to death by the savages.

The day's program was drawn to conclusion with a triple Benediction at 3:30 p. m. The first Benediction was held in the Coliseum, and from there the Blessed Sacrament was carried in solemn procession to the scene of the second Benediction, a wayside shrine of Our Lady. From the shrine of Our Lady, the procession continued to the ravine where it is believed that Rene Goupil was tomahawked to death by the Indians, and laid to rest there by Saint Isaac Jogues. The final Benediction was held at this spot.

Then, after a most memorable day, the Sodality returned to Syracuse. Rev. Andrew Brady, S.J., said that the trip to the historic shrine, which proved to be interesting as well as informative, should be taken by all students in the course of their college life.

Alpha Sigma Nu Meets in St. Louis

Delegates from 21 chapters of Alpha Sigma Nu, national Jesuit Honor Fraternity, met in St. Louis October 18 and 19 to hold their annual two-day convention and to elect national officers for the coming year. Representatives from chapters as far away as San Francisco, New Orleans and Mobile were present at the sessions held at the luxurious Melbourne Hotel, situated across the street from the campus of St. Louis University.

calls for the general support of Catholic education and the specific support of Jesuit education. The national convention hopes to bring this about by the institution of a symposium on the value of a Jesuit education in the chapter schools, so that the student bodies would become more fully aware of the ideals and aims of their Jesuit educators. On the local level, the convention favored a yearly report to the President of each college by the local chapter of Alpha Sigma Nu, evaluating such things as the general conditions in the school, the university activities, and the external influence of other groups upon the school.

Elected to the office of national president of Alpha Sigma Nu was William C. Rodgers, a graduate of Loyola College of Baltimore, and former vice-president of the Jesuit honorary. Paul Elvard, a graduate of the College of Arts and Sciences, as well as the Law School of Loyola University of Chicago will fill the vice-president post. The incumbent, Dr. Hugo Hellman, director of the school of speech at Marquette University, was returned to office as national secretary-treasurer of the organization. The Jesuit moderator for the group is the Rev. Richard Ryan, S.J., Assistant Dean of the College of Arts at St. Louis University.

Le Moyné College was represented by John J. Considine, president of the Le Moyné Chapter of Alpha Sigma Nu and assistant managing editor of the DOLPHIN.

WOMEN'S ANGLE

By Ann Giordano

"Women like not only to conquer, but to be conquered."—Thackeray

Father McCorry's return to the Heights as Retreat Master for the women brought back happy memories of his many diatribes on the foibles of the female sex. I think a woman's opinion on the subject should be voiced. It must have seemed strange to many that despite Father's various scoldings to the feminine half of mankind, the women came back in droves and asked for more. But this phenomenon can be explained easily in a few words, that most men, and even a few women, will find hard to believe. The simple, unmentioned fact is that women unconsciously agree with everything that was said, whether they realize it or not. One point especially caught my interest, and that is Father McCorry's statement that a woman's position is "essential but subordinate." Most men fail to see that women are aware of the fact, and what's more, they wouldn't want it any other way. We are perfectly willing to be treated as subordinate, as long as we are regarded at the same time as essential. Of course, most women would never admit it, but given a choice, 99 times out of 100 they would prefer the rank of boatswain's mate to ship's captain anytime. That's a fact—it's according to woman's nature to be happiest under such a set-up.

Aside to the Women—For a good insight into the "essential" element of a woman's nature, take a look at James Barrie's delightful play, "What Every Woman Knows."

Personal Gripe Dept. . . . Social—or Anti-Social? At the risk of rehashing a delicate subject, why, oh, why, do fellows at Le Moyné attend a dance to stand around and talk? The Freshman Social looked more like a meeting of the U.N. on many parts of the dance floor. What gives, anyway? What variety of plant or animal have we here—budding wallflower or the dancing's-no-fun gi?

More over, Mrs. Zaharias, we're coming in! Ignoring the male jibes and groans of protest, the ladies of Le Moyné are seriously considering the game of golf. Under the sponsorship of the Bishop Foery

Club, two classes have been signed, and elementary instructions will begin shortly at Charles Andrews.

At the first meeting, Mr. Grygiel, golf pro at Drumlins, explained the fundamentals of the game. Come Spring, the men won't be the only ones whose fancy lightly turns to thoughts of pars and birdies, and the smell of fresh green grass. When we get out on the links, don't say we didn't warn you beFOREhand.

I thought the World Series had everyone TV-conscious for a week, but apparently some sweet young things were unaffected by it all. One wide-eyed, winsome asked for her opinion on the Giants' chances, answered quite innocently, "I don't know, dearie, I never follow football." Wonder what Doak Walker's latest batting average is?

It's a Man's World—as far as horseback riding is concerned. To date one lonesome gal has accepted the invitation to sign up for instruction. I guess the expression, "Slop Along With Hopalong," as one prof coined it, leaves most women cold.

Thought in Passing . . . Why don't more men go out for cheer-leading? From the action seen at the Siena tournament game, I'd say that some guys were hoarding a lot of their talent.

Dolphin Sportlights

By Bill Hickey

From the looks of things, the Dolphins should have a good chance of winning the first contest of the season against Siena. We glanced through their sports column the other day and came to the conclusion that as yet they have not fully recovered from the two beatings which we administered last year. They seem to be suffering from shell shock. Milt Benoit, sports editor of the SIENA NEWS, still has the newspaper clipping of the Indians' loss in the N.C.I.T. hanging on the wall in his office. He's afraid that "always tough for Siena" Le Moyne will give a pair of repeat performances this year when the two teams meet.

Speaking of the opening game with Siena, naturally brings us to the Pep Rally. The committee in charge of the rally has arranged a program for the evening that makes all the previous attempts to build a team following look sick. Of prime importance in this affair is student cooperation. We have the opposition worried. Coach Niland has one of the finest basketball aggregations in this section. If the student body will only make an effort to support the team, Le Moyne will have another winner.

FORDHAM VS. SYRACUSE

We have the habit of going out on the limb for almost anything. This is an occupational hazard common to sports writers. During the baseball season we selected the Yankees and the Giants for the top position in their respective leagues when the season closed. We hate to say we told you so, but we did. Last issue we predicted Fordham would be one of the better teams in the country. A strong Holy Cross squad altered our opinion slightly. Nevertheless, after witnessing the recent classic struggle between the Illini and Bill Orange we feel certain that the Rams will have very little trouble subduing the forces of Piety Hill. Roger Franz, the kingpin in the Rose Hill offense, has proven himself so far this season to be a match for any quarterback in the East. Apparently the Syracuse University coaching staff is having a little difficulty replacing "Pat Stark" who was injured in the first game of the campaign. Anyone who saw the Illinois game is conscious of the fact that the Orange must have been flipping a coin to decide on the next play. At any rate, we're picking the Rams to roll up an easy victory.

OLD WARRIORS IN THE NEWS

Don Savage is still bucking for a spot on the Nats roster. It seems that the Nationals have six men but have only three vacancies. We read the local newspapers to find out how the ex-Dolphin captain was working out, but the more we read the more nebulous the whole affair becomes. The publicists for the Syracuse Nats can't seem to agree on Savage's status. We feel that the local club would lose a good man should Savage be cut. After watching a recent workout between the Dolphins and the Nats, it becomes obvious that Savage would be a tremendous asset in getting the Nats back on the top rung in the tremendous asset in getting the Nats back on the top rung in the league.

In a recent issue we mentioned that Norb King was undergoing an operation on his back for a wound he received in the last war. Norb, in the meantime, has been forced to return to the hospital for a second operation. We have been unable to find out how successful the operations have been, but we're all hoping that he recovers soon.

SEASON BROADCAST

There is just a chance that all the Dolphin basketball games will be broadcast this season, that is, both home and away games. Red Parton will be back at his old stand behind the microphone again this season.

The intramural league must have become a little more than just touch tackle in recent weeks. One of the stalwart linemen for a six-man squad went through the meat grinder during a hard-fought contest. Frank King, a Junior entry, broke his nose in eight places and suffered a slight concussion when he was blocked by a member of the opposition. It would probably be better if the boys stayed loose and didn't take the game quite so seriously. King is out for the remainder of the season.

The game against St. Francis of Brooklyn, which has just been added to the slate, could turn out to be a grudge game. It was the same Brooklyn men which eliminated the Dolphins in the Third round of the N.C.I.T. at Albany. Of course, this is another and the story could be different.

Hand and Jenkins Elected Co-Captains of Dolphins For 1951-52 Cage Season

The 1951-52 version of the Le Moyne College Dolphins have elected their new court leaders for the coming basketball campaign. Although this marks the fifth season for the young college, this will be the first time that Don Savage will not make an appearance as captain of the Green and Gold.

In a closed practice, the quintet selected Jim Hand, a Senior, and Bill Jenkins, a Junior, to handle the running of the squad. They will be the first Dolphin co-captains.

Jim Hand is one of the only two Seniors on the varsity. In high school, Jim played three sports: football, basketball, and track, winning letters in all of them. As a cinderman, Hand ran with a championship two-mile relay team which set a state record. Basketball, however, held more interest for him than the others. In his first year at Le Moyne he paced the yearlings with 151 points for the regular season. Numerous and recurrent injuries have hampered his play but in spite of this Jim has always been up near the top in the scoring column. Outside of his business course, Jim spends quite a bit of time learning Navy jargon. When he graduates, Jim, who is a member of the local N.R.O.T.C., will be an ensign in the U.S.N. The cager's home is in Lynbrook, L. I., where he attended Malverne High School.

Besides Don Savage of 1600-point fame, Bill Jenkins is the most prolific scorer on the varsity. Bill is the possessor of every shot in the books. In play, his biggest asset is his agile mind. Invariably he is two or three plays ahead of any other player on the court. His set shots are deadly, his passing is perfect. Jenkins held quite a grip on the athletic scene of his high school as well. In four years he managed to play at one time or another: football, baseball, basketball, and soccer. When he was a member of the St. Vincent quintet, he was elected captain on three successive years during which time he placed on numerous All-Star and All-Parochial League aggregations. At present he holds the Scholastic high scoring record for Syracuse. Bill, a Junior, in his first and only year of varsity competition, collected 362 points. Jenkins is a business student and foresees nothing in the future except service with the forces of Uncle Sam.

Terriers Complete Dolphin Schedule

The Le Moyne College Athletic Association has announced that the Terriers of St. Francis College have been added to the schedule for the coming campaign. This game is to be played in the 14th Regiment Armory in Brooklyn.

The contest will become a part of a three-game road trip for the Dolphins to New York City. Seton Hall and St. Peter's College of Jersey City will provide the other competition. The games are to be played on successive nights, December 5, 6, and 7.

The Terriers are not newcomers to the Dolphin slate. Two seasons ago they made an appearance on the Coliseum hardwood and defeated the Le Moyne quintet. This was the contest, however, in which Captain Don Savage of the Dolphins set an all-time scoring mark for the State Fair Grounds with 40 markers in a single contest. In last year's N.C.I.T. tournament it was the Brooklyn squad which knocked the Le Moyne five out of

Every college has its ups and downs in sports. Some schools go years in sports without ever winning an athletic contest. More fortunate institutions rack up undefeated streaks that last for great periods of time. Of the more fortunate, Hartwick College has had a winning streak in cross-country that went from early September, 1949, to October 6, 1951. On Saturday, the 6th, Le Moyne engaged the great Hartwick barriers and finally set them back. It was the first meet loss to the Lutheran aggregation in over three full seasons of running.

It's hard to single out any one individual who changed victory for Hartwick into defeat. Jimmy Matthews won the individual laurels by simply never being headed after the 2-mile mark. He triumphed in 23 minutes 39 seconds. Captain Joe Ficaro couldn't catch Matthews in the last half mile and had to be content with second place. "Marathon Joe" ran 20 seconds behind the winner.

Andy Van Buren, George Desantis, and Pete Creme, all Hartwick barriers, rounded out the first five finishers of the 20-man field.

John Rayo ran sixth for the Dolphins. The Le Moyne No. 3 runner gained tremendously from 9th place to his final position only on the last hill. It was Rayo's first appearance this year in running. Zetnick of the Lutherans ran seventh and was followed in eighth by sprinter-quarter-miler Dick May. The No. 4 Dolphin runner was not in a position to catch Zetnick or be passed himself at the wire.

Frank Parris came into view in tenth place but put on a great drive at the end to complete the Le Moyne team, finishing ninth. Parris nipped Andy Pawlas of Hartwick within 50 yards of the wire.

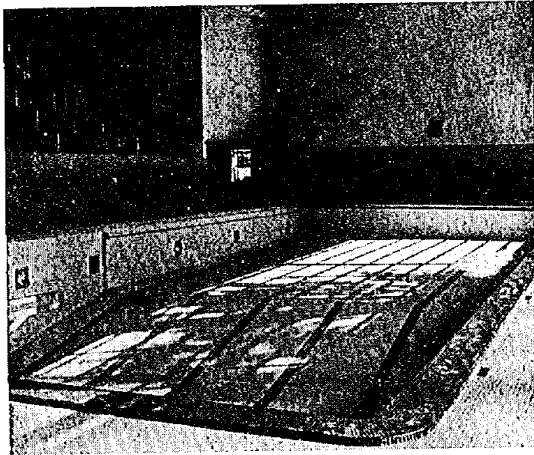

Much of the credit of the great Dolphin victory is owed to Coach Hughes. "Now I don't want you boys brainning yourselves in the beginning. This race lasts 5 miles. If Hartwick wants to blast the beginning, let them. You've got time to come up. That's the way I want you to run it," Pat Hughes advised. His tactics paid off because the Lutheran aggregation did fade as the results prove. The final reading: Hartwick 29; Le Moyne 26. (Low score wins in cross-country).

Tankmen Schedule Freshman Tryouts; Prepare for Busy Season in S. U. Pool

This is a view of the new Syracuse University pool which will be the scene of all the Dolphin home meets. The mermen have four contests scheduled for the pool.

Coach Gallipeau has announced that the swimming team will begin tryouts on November 5 at the Boys' Club. Although the squad has a number of returning veterans, the vacancies opened by the graduation of several mermen must be filled by the Freshmen or other underclassmen. This year the tank outfit is preparing to open its toughest schedule. One big difficulty in recent years has been the lack of adequate pool facilities for meets and practice. The Athletic Association has negotiated with Syracuse University this year for the use of their newly constructed pool. In all probability this will be used for the contests and the Boys' Club pool will become the practice pool.

Mickey Zolo, the leading point scorer on last year's squad, will be back in the starting lineup again this season. Ike Royer, a free-style expert, and Phil Stonger are returning to compete in their specialty. Other old faces that will be seen on the new team are: Paul Ryan, Bob McMahon, Julius Deuble, Joe Sullivan, Hugh Carey and Bill Fallon.

Mr. Gallipeau will be assisted by Manager Terry Fay again this year. Terry has done a wonderful job in helping to organize and publicize the squad.

Coach Gallipeau, who is the supervisor of the county lifeguards, had a number of the swimmers working out during the summer at the Jamesville County Park. Royer and Sullivan were working under head guard, Ron Fox, an ex-Dolphin swimmer.

The tankmen are urgently in need of support from the Freshmen because a large part of the squad consists of Juniors and Seniors who will be graduating soon. Thinking of the future, the coach wants to start building a secondary squad which will be experienced enough to take over when the time comes.

Most of the pertinent information as to exact time and place of tryouts will be posted on the athletic bulletin board.

New Cheerleaders From Underclasses; Kates, Fitzgerald

Spurring on school spirit is their job, and in seasons gone by the cheerleaders have done just that. At every basketball game these "mighty-mites" perform on the sidelines. Never once have the Le Moyne-minded cheerleaders permitted their school to be out-cheered. The score made no difference. They were out there to help the team regardless of scores or breaks. To sum it up, these co-eds, clad in Green and Gold, are part of the Le Moyne team. This year, as in the past, will be found a force which will lead Le Moyne spirit throughout the various arenas.

Heading the list, as a leader of the vivacious participators, is Ann Cassidy, Ann, a senior majoring in Social Science, has been cheering for Le Moyne for the past two years. She hails from St. John the Evangelist and has great pride in her alma mater. Ann's pleasant smile is known to all.

Mary Therese Ryan, a Junior English major, is also a very capable performer. Mary, with a year's experience behind her, is expected to be one of the mainstays on this year's cheering staff. Most Holy Rosary's loss is Le Moyne's gain.

Two Sophomores, Jo-An Fitzgerald and Margaret Kates, are new members of this year's cheerleaders. Jo-An, a Sophomore, Science major, spent her high school days at St. Anthony's. Margaret, majoring in Social Studies, is a graduate of Nottingham. Both are excellent prospects and will be a big help to this year's cheering team.

The Fresh contributions are Marilyn Erb and Peggy Root. Marilyn performed magnificently during her days at Fayetteville High School as a cheerleader. Peggy is also an experienced performer, having led the St. John

As I See It

By Bob Betterton

The other day a Broadway show came to Syracuse. This, in itself is an event which only happens rarely, but what happened to me, never happened to anyone.

Now I've been to the legitimate theater before, and let me tell you, New York or Syracuse, it's all the same. You get the Broadway hustle from the word go. But I'm getting ahead of myself. Here's what happened:

I hadn't even planned to go to the show, but the glitter of the marquee, the laughter of the crowd and the romance that is the theater lured me to the box office. The beautiful blond in the cage looked rather dreamy-eyed as she murmured, "O.K., Buster, what'll ya have? We got just the cheap seats and a few in the orchestra."

She seemed to shudder and nearly lose control when she said "cheap seats," but, not wanting to sit with a bunch of hopped-up musicians; I took less expensive tickets. She put on a pair of gloves, picked up the tickets and handed them to me. Sobbing softly, she waved goodbye and as the theater door closed behind me, I thought I heard her scream.

At the movies there is a relaxed, we-don't-give-a-damn-if-you-come-or-not attitude, but at the stage show, someone is always hustling. An eager young man kept insisting that I needed a program, a copy of the book of the play and an album of the recordings of the outstanding speeches. I kept insisting that I didn't and while we argued some girl ripped the coat off my back and checked it. For years I have been sitting on a folded-up coat through double features complete with cartoon, previews and news, but this is a drab-ma and the coat must be checked.

the Baptist cheering sections for two years. With these two yearlings to complete the lineup, Le Moyne has a bright future.

I started to protest but a pretty young usherette, wearing a mink's cap, offered to guide me to my seat. She said it wasn't far, but I went through two bags of popcorn and a Mounds bar before I got there. She showed me the seat, pointed out the stage and left me.

The seat was rather high up in the balcony. In fact, the ceiling wouldn't allow me to straighten up in the chair. I didn't mind, though, the guy in the next row had to lie down in the aisle during the show.

At last the house lights were dimmed and the show was about to begin. Then the exit light above my head went on and the stage took on a reddish haze.

The stage itself was set in two levels but from where I sat I could only see the feet of those on the upper level and the heads of those on the lower. It was like watching a movie when the film is off track.

I guess the actors were speaking, but I began to wish I had bought those records. I was disgusted. My foot had gone to sleep and I couldn't stand up to stretch on account of the ceiling. Wearily I crawled out of the seat and clumped down the stairs to the lobby.

There, in the lobby, the program vendor was putting his wares away. He looked a little surprised when I bought a copy of the book of the play and headed for home. Phooey on the theater. After this experience even the movies will seem better than ever.

Heavy Workouts Prep Varsity for First Game Against Siena Indians

Led by co-captains Jim Hand and Bill Jenkins, the Le Moyne College basketball squad continues its daily drills at the Grant School gym. Frequent scrimmages with the Syracuse Nats have greatly helped Coach Tommy Niland pick out the bad points in the Dolphin attack. Working with a nucleus of Hand and Freddy Sheridan at the forwards, Dick Shea in the center slot, and Jenkins and George Pandelly at the guards, the Green and Gold has shown plenty of fight in scrimmages and inter-squad battles to date.

Brilliant Billy Jenkins looks to be headed for another stellar season with the Dolphins. His play-making and driving ability have paced the squad in the pre-season practices. Hand and Sheridan are playing heads up basketball at their forward posts, hitting for timely baskets with set shots and teaming for the fast breaks. "Boogar" Shea, the leading freshman candidate for a starting berth, has shown great poise in handling the center duties and along with Pandelly, has controlled the offensive backboards. Fred Byers and Ray Staerker have shared the pivot play in the absence of Shea, who has been sidelined for a few weeks with pulled ligaments in his right ankle. Byers has shown great improvement over last year, and may prove to be an important cog in Coach Niland's rebuilding program. Staerker has also lent valuable support to the center play with his accurate hook shots and rebounding.

Tales From Spin Alley

By Bill Spinelli

At this late date in the academic year, I am pretty certain that all textbooks have been opened at least once. Therefore, I would like to register a formal complaint about the matter printed in these books . . . especially in the Philosophy textbooks. Philosophy, for those who have not yet been inculcated with the metaphysical dissertation, is a very interesting and enlightening course . . . one which gives a person a new insight into human nature and the world about. However, like all good things, the reward reaped is greater or less, according to the amount of time spent in studying the course.

Now, here's the rub. I claim that these books are written in favor of the Latin and Greek students. Phrases from these languages are sprinkled more than liberally throughout the books. You may be reading along and suddenly find yourself confronted with a phrase such as "operator sequitur esse" or "in actu secundo." These are mere baby phrases which are immediately explained by the author. But my point is, why put them in at all? Then there is the case of the footnote which is supposed to explain some point in the main body of the text. This little explanation muddled me completely. Imagine reading, "Facultas hoc loco non intelligitur aliqua potentia?" and so on. Gads, this stuff is rough enough. As if it weren't bad enough, the authors every now and then toss in a thunderous Greek phrase to show how clearly they understand the subject. They may understand clearly, but those phrases are driving me "loco." I guess I'll have to go back to "Hic, Haec, Hoc" and "Gallia est divisa in tres partes."

Located at a not-too-distant point from the college is a dispensary of amber-colored, fermented, foamy concoction which puts a telltale odor on the breath, a gay (or is it stupid) smile on the face and a certain swagger (or is it stagger) to the walk. If this liquid is imbibed in too great quantities, the cranium feels slightly deflated the next morning. The dispensary is patronized chiefly by Le Moyne students and has recently changed the color scheme from yellow to blue (if memory serves correctly and memory is apt to be a bit muddled in that joint). By this time, everyone, even the most uninitiated to the ways of collegemen, must know of the establishment whereof I speak.

After this long, involved, ornate introduction, I come to the exposition of the main point of this dissertation. Le Moyne lacks drinking songs! Where is the Le Moyne "Stein Song?" To fill in this void, I herewith humbly submit my contribution to the cause, ably aided, of course, by the great nurse, Mary Lou Sloan.

THE DOLPHIN POOPER SONG

From the tables at Roberto's—to the place where Wanda dwells,
To the dear old sloppy bar we love so well
Sing the Dolphins all assembled, with their glasses raised on high
And the croaking of their singing sounds like hell.
Yes, the raucous noise they make,
As their thirsts they try to slake
With Carlings, Millers, Bud
And all the rest.
We shall serenade our Wanda
While life and voice shall last
Then we'll flunk and be forgotten with the rest.
We are poor little Dolphins
Who have lost our cash.
Splash, Splash, Splash.
Little green Dolphins
Who have gone to sea,
Splash, Splash, Splash.
Happy youth off on a spree,
Drinking beer—but not for free.
Le Moyne, have mercy on such as we,
Splash, Splash, Splash.

Recently, a group of students at Le Moyne seriously discussed setting up a students' union. They are advocating a 40-hour week for all collegians. In this day and age of overtime, incentive plans and bonus arrangements, the principle of collective bargaining could be applied to college life. These students claim, and valdilly, that the output on the part of the instructors, which takes the form of marks, should be commensurate with the input on the part of the students, which takes the form of study.

Imagine what conditions would prevail if the 40-hour week were put into practice? An arrangement could be made whereby these 40 hours would guarantee at least a passing mark. For work over and beyond the 40 hours, the time and a half rule would prevail. Every 10 hours above the legal amount would result in an increase in grades. So, a work week of 60 hours would result in a "B" grade and 80 hours would automatically place one in an "A" grade.

A bonus would be granted to all students who agreed to open their texts at least once a week and maybe an incentive plan arrangement could be set up whereby if a student handed in all his assignments for one month, that student would be excused from classes for a week.

Well, the opium supply is running out, so I'd better go over, punch the time clock and get to work on my assignments.

Candidates Attend Fr. Brady's Lectures; LaCasse Outlines Plans for New Year

The Sodality of Our Lady held its first meeting on Thursday, October 11th, at 8 o'clock, in the College auditorium. The new candidates heard an introductory address by Father Brady at 7:30 p. m.

Father Brady's lecture to the candidates dwelled on the numerous benefits and graces received, if one seriously intends to cooperate and work for the aims of the Sodality. He declared emphatically that the Sodality wants only those candidates who have a calling for such a way of life.

At the regular meeting, Donald LaCasse, Prefect of the Sodality, presented plans for the coming year. Every member is expected to join in these plans and do his share.

The Poor Committee, under the leadership of Joanne Jordan, has been active the entire summer and has presented plans for a busy winter program.

A Holy Year Pilgrimage, slated for November 4th, is being planned by the Sodalists in order that they may receive the many graces bestowed on those who make the visit to the four designated churches.

It was announced that the Sodality meetings will be held every Thursday evening at 8 p. m. in accordance with the intention to strengthen the Jay apostolate, the Rosary will be said in the Chapel every day, as in previous years, and the Missa Recitata Mass will be said in the Chapel twice a week.

Student Pilgrimage

A Holy Year Pilgrimage will be made by the students of the College on November 11. Those making the Pilgrimage will visit four of the city's churches in their journey. At 1:30 on Sunday the students are to assemble at the Cathedral. From there they will make their way to St. Peter's, St. John the Evangelist, and St. John the Baptist, respectively.

This event is sponsored by the Eucharistic Committee of the Sodality with John Considine in charge. All students are urged to attend to make it a success.

Hello, Mr. and Mrs. North America, and all the ships at sea! This is your roving reporter to bring you all the latest news. Our sponsor "Grads" will guarantee success and happiness for everyone who tries this product or your money back.

But now to get on with the news.

FLASH! Tom Rowe has really rowed his boat down the river to Watertown and docked at the Le-high Coal Company. So what do you think—he's Rose Kwasiogroch District Sales Representative yet.

Not to be outwitted, L. Mason Crowe pulls right along side his fellow-accounting major, Tom, and steers into the New York State Department of Labor. Now, he's a research accountant.

Prices are going sky-high this winter because the harvest was poor this fall. So if you are complaining, take your thoughts to Joe Dowd, Jim Meagher, and Huck Hurley. They're working for International Harvester.

And now for a bit on the feminine side of the news! Nancy Jane Kerlin, one-time Chemistry major at Le Moyne, is still up her old test tubes, but now she's at Carrier.

Another Chemistry major, Rosie McMahon, is making with the test tubes out at Bristol Laboratories.

Seeing to it that the Bell Telephones are behaving themselves properly is Barb O'Connor. She's being trained to take the position of Business Representative with the Telephone Company.

School bells are still ringing for many of the Class of '51. Joe Barry is attending Georgetown Medical School. Tom McGill is also at Georgetown. Jim O'Leary went to Canada to attend Toronto University.

Not only will Le Moyne students cheer for this school's basketball teams this year but they will give a cheer or two for the Nats, because Don Savage, one-time basketball star for Le Moyne, is now playing with the Syracuse Nationals.

That's all the news for today, but that's not all the graduate stories that I have to tell. So look for me again next issue.

Jesuit Alumni Head Calls Next Meeting; Makes Final Plans For Fordham Dance

W. Marcus Crahan, Georgetown '29, President of the Jesuit Alumni Association of Central New York, has announced that the mid-monthly meeting of this group was held Friday, October 19th, at 8:15 p. m. in the Penthouse Lounge of Le Moyne College. All men and women graduates of Le Moyne, especially, should attend this and all the meetings of the Alumni Association.

During the course of the meeting the final arrangements will be made for the Fordham and Jesuit Alumni open-house and dance to be held at the Hotel Onondaga after the Fordham-Syracuse University football game which takes place on October 27th. This is only the start of the great social season planned for this year.

The Le Moyne College Alumni, a recent addition to the Jesuit Alumni Association, have already become eager participants in the activities. They held their first annual banquet on October 13th in the Hotel Onondaga and from all reports this was a very successful event. They hope that the rest of the events will be equally successful.

Frederick Ashton, Robert Helpmann, Moira Shearer and Leonide Maslina in a scene from the Technicolor film, "Tales of Hoffmann." Starts October 30 at the Eckel. Student tickets are available.
